Georgia DOT Complaints

Anytime you have a complaint, please contact the Environmental Compliance Bureau as it is their direct responsibility to respond to outside concerns and complaints regarding environmental issues. However, you can reach a local GDOT person by accessing the website at <http://www.dot.state.ga.us/> and choosing the District and then Area where the project is located.

The Environmental Compliance office has asked the District and Area people to always contact them if they receive a complaint, but sometimes they forget, so they want you contact them directly and then they will forward the complaint to the appropriate Area/District personnel and help to resolve the issue.

Field Districts Division

The Georgia Department of Transportation is divided into seven districts which are responsible for operating and maintaining the transportation system at the local level. Each district has a District Engineer, who is responsible for planning, organizing and directing the activities of the district. Districts are also subdivided by area offices, which are overseen by Area Engineers.

Go to this website to find out more about Area District Contact information.
